OBJECTIVE

Reaching a transition point in my career, I am returning to an earlier interest, documentary photography and photojournalism. I hope to discover new ways of exploring themes, develop a personal 'style', perhaps incorporating elements of fine-art, and hone a story-telling approach. Having spent much of my career in anthropology and behavioural science, I hope too that I shall be able to draw on my network and find different ways of having an impact. I have an interest in humanitarian photography and hope to undertake an MPhil/DPhil drawing on my photographic, behavioural and development interests.

RELEVANT EDUCATION / COURSES

- PhD Behavioural Science, Univ of Bristol (1985)
- Diploma in Psychotherapy & Counselling, Univ of Surrey (1998)
- Fellow of the Royal Anthropological Institute (2015)

Over the last 18 months, I have taken several photography and documentary photography courses, including the Open University/RPS Certificate in Photography, MoMA NY photographic appreciation, Falmouth Flexible MA "Principles & Practices" unit, Central St Martins' "Introduction to Reportage", and the Magnum Street Photography workshop in Paris.

OCCUPATION

A Tutor in Psychology and Counselling with the University of Oxford, I am responsible for all externally facing coaching programmes. I also lead both undergraduate and Masters' level courses in HR and Leadership, as well as executive education courses in similar areas. For seven years, I have helped lead the Oxford Adaptation Academy – a summer school for climate adaptation and resilience specialists.

PUBLICATIONS

Author of nine management textbooks, and around 300 editorial and opinion editorial articles.

My first (and only!) photographic technical article appeared in Camera Weekly on 16 Aug 1986. In recent months, however, I have had various reviews published by the RPS.
